

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A safe for deposits is inserted a sealed bag containing cash and houses the bag for preventing illicit actions and theft even when scrutiny processing is outsourced. A bag
5 insertion portion into which a cash bag is inserted, cassette housing portion which houses a recoverable cassette, and control portion are provided to the safe to perform recovery merely through cassette attachment and removal operations, so that the danger of failure to recover a cash
10 bag (bag left behind) is prevented. And information on the housed cash bag is stored in the cassette for checking the cash bag.